

Unlocking the power of civil society

Citizens Scotland-Glasgow is a developing alliance of communities – religious institutions, trade unions, educational establishments, charities and community associations – working together for a better Glasgow. The aim of Citizens Scotland is social, economic and environmental justice. We will work towards that goal by training people of all ages, faiths and backgrounds to take action together for change. In partnership with Glasgow University, Citizens Scotland will be hosting a workshop on Tuesday 12th February in the St Silas' Church (across from the St Andrew's Building of Glasgow university) from 2 until 4.30pm.

The aim of this event is to bring together leaders of various institutions and other interested parties from around Glasgow to discuss the development of a broad based organisation in Glasgow through community organising and how these institutions can become a part of Citizens Scotland-Glasgow.

This event is free for participants.

Neil Jameson, Chief Executive of Citizens UK will be facilitating the session along with Clare Carr, Community Organiser for Citizens Scotland.

Please contact Clare Carr on the contact details below if you have any questions. Please let us know if you are interested in attending this session to allow us to adequately accommodate numbers.
