SCUTREA Conference

Adult Education in Austere Times

Tuesday 5 – Thursday 7 July 2016

Standing Conference on University Teaching and Research in the Education of Adults

The SCUTREA Conference, hosted in collaboration with the Vaughan Centre for Lifelong Learning, will provide a platform for researchers and professionals who engage with the education of adults and lifelong learning to address key areas of national and international concern.

Adult education matters. It matters at home, in work, and in the community. It matters to families, to the economy and to our health and wellbeing. Its decline is indicative of the huge price this and future generations are set to pay for the politics of austerity. Yet it could not be clearer that we are living through times that demand more adult education and learning, not less.

Keynote Speaker: Dr Jim Crowther

Senior Lecturer in Community Education in the School of Education, University of Edinburgh
